F. D. R. PLACES MUCH EMPHASIS ON OBJECTIVES

Begins Weekend of Sight-seeing In Yellowstone Park

REMAINS SILENT ON COURT ISSUE

Senator O'Mahoney, Foe Of Bill Is Guest On Special Train

(By Associated Press)
ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN ENROUTE TO SEATTLE, Sept. 25.—President Roosevelt began a weekend of sightseeing in Yellowstone National park today after six year platform talks in Wyoming where he promised less federal spending and struck at those who give only "lip" service to government objectives.

Silent on Court

Instead of reviving the supreme court issue as many had forecast he might do—at least indirectly—he talked thus far of better times, fewer people on relief, broad administration aims, electric power, and other less controversial subjects.

He also told an inquirer at one stop that he hoped the United States would stay out of war.

The presence of Senator O'Mahoney, foe of the defeated supreme court enlargement plan, in the welcoming group at Cheyenne and on the President's train across the state surprised some observers, but O'Mahoney considered it the "normal" thing to do. He told inquiring newsmen he had no enmity toward Mr. Roosevelt for the latter, in his half dozen talks, gave no outward indication of his feelings in that respect.

The President has described his current trip as one of inspection rather than a "campaign" tour.

The chief executive and Mrs. Roosevelt looked forward to their stay in Yellowstone.

Met the Boettiger's. They expected to meet at the park's mammoth Springs hotel during the day Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger, son-in-law and daughter, and the latter's two children, Eleanor and Curtis Dall. They will remain with the party until the train reaches Seattle, their home, today night.

After leaving Casper, Wyo., the special rolled through the wintry trail toward Laurel and Livingston, Mont., and Gardner, Mont., northern entrance to the nation's scenic wonderland. Flurries of snow were in the air and the entire party changed to heavier clothing.

Growers To Hear Fruit Specialist

LISBON, Sept. 25.—F. H. Beach, Ohio State university fruit specialist, will address county growers at the Greenford grange hall Sept. 29. Mr. Beach will discuss the proper time to pick apples for storage purposes at the meeting. Bobby Snyder

His desire to emulate the deeds of gangsters and gunmen whose exploits he followed in radio serials and tabloid magazines was believed the explanation for the shooting of his principal, Miss June Mapes, by Bobby Snyder, 12-year-old Toledo, O., schoolboy. After walking into the office of Miss Mapes and firing five shots, two of which struck her, young Snyder fled and was found later in a nearby ravine, a bullet in his head and near death.

GARR BROTHERS FREED ON BOND

Await Action of Grand Jury In Gen. Denhardt Slaying

(By Associated Press)
SHELBYVILLE, Ky., Sept. 25.—Free on bond, the three Garr brothers, accused of the slaying Monday night of Brig. Gen. Harry Denhardt, awaited today the action of a Shelby county grand jury scheduled to convene October 4.

Their bonds, totaling $50,000, were quickly executed yesterday by six Oldham county friends, after County Judge Harry P. Walters bound them over to the grand jury. The brothers—Roy, Jack and Dr. E. S. Garr—are charged with murder in warrants sworn out Tuesday, but can be prosecuted only on indictments.

Return Home

Dr. Garr and Roy returned to their home near La Grange, in Diddam county, Jack Garr, 37-year-old "baby" of the trio, said he was going to his home near Cincinnati.

Judge Walters' decision to grant the brothers bail was cheered wildly by the crowd that had jammed the courtroom all day and heard Roy Garr, 46-year-old farmer and bird dog trainer, assume full responsibility for the death of the 61-year-old general, who had been indicted and once tried for the slaying of his fiancée, Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor, 40, "baby sister" of the Garrs.

Describing the shooting, which occurred on this Bluegrass city's almost-deserted main street as the former lieutenant governor and adjutant general of Kentucky was walking with his attorney, Rodes K. Myers of Bowling Green, Roy Garr said:

"I saw Denhardt go for his right hip, and by God, I went for my gun. I was scared and I started shooting and didn't stop until I had emptied my gun."

Disputes Myers' Testimony

Roy disputed testimony by Myers that he had fired a "coup de grace" shot into the general's head after he lay dead in the doorway of a hotel.

Dr. Garr, 48-year-old veterinarian, testified he fired two shots but did not know whether either struck Denhardt. Jack Garr, according to testimony, was not armed.

Golfers Careful At "Hold-Up Hole"

CINCINNATI, Sept. 25.—Golfers played the 14th hole at Ridgeway Country club cautiously today and kept an eye on a nearby clump of woods from which a masked bandit has appeared twice to rob five players.

A threesome reported to Sheriff Deputy George J. Heitzler yesterday that a bandit wearing a sugar sack for a mask and holding a revolver in a gloved hand, robbed them of $69 and two watches. A two-man had a similar experience a week ago. They were robbed of $20.

FARLEY'S PLANS MAY BE TIP-OFF ON F.D.R. FUTURE

Retirement May Indicate President Won't Ask Third Term

MOVE IS AWAITED BY POLITICIANS

Postmaster Understood to Have Accepted Business Post

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Politicians—particularly those who think President Roosevelt may seek a third term—are watching closely for official word on Postmaster General Farley's future plans.

Some of them would regard his retirement from the cabinet, even though he retained the chairmanship of the Democratic national committee, as a tip-off that the chief executive had made up his mind not to run again despite any amount of possible urging.

Wouldn't Permit Withdrawal

If Mr. Roosevelt has any third term ideas, these men argue, he would not permit withdrawal from Washington of the man who directed his political campaigns so successfully through two Democratic national conventions and two presidential elections.

They recalled that despite recurrent criticism from some of the President's closest supporters, Farley held both the cabinet and the party posts throughout Mr. Roosevelt's first term and took only a leave of absence from the post of office department to conduct the 1936 campaign.

Farley is understood to have agreed to become president of the Pierce Arrow Motor corporation. He has delayed accepting the post, it is reported, until preparation of a SEC registration statement for a new Pierce Arrow stock issue.

In his two present positions, he has served the President in three major ways—as a political adviser and organizer, as a cabinet member, and as "whipping boy."

Little Time for Politics

Even if he kept the national committee post, his return to private business undoubtedly would curtail his political activities. As a business executive, he would not have much time to devote to Democratic organization work.

Farley's political activities have not been limited to campaigns. He constantly has been in touch with political lieutenants, making speeches, and handling patronage matters.

No other cabinet officer has approached Farley's record for travel and speech-making.

M.E. HOMECOMING SET FOR OCT. 24

Former Pastors and Members To Be Invited Here for Fete

The Methodist church will hold a homecoming at the church on Sunday, Oct. 24, for former members and teachers. Rev. H. J. Thompson is general chairman, Fred Lewis, vice chairman and Mrs. F. J. Stoudt, program chairman.

Invitations will be sent to former pastors and members now living in other communities. Each organization and class of the church will participate. An interesting program is planned.

The general committee includes: Mrs. Fred Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Matthews; F. J. Stoudt; Mr. and Mrs. George Dressel; Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stratton; Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Naragon; Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Smucker; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shears; Miss Helen French; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Floding; Mrs. Elizabeth Kirkbride; Misses Ella and Zillah Stamp; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cornwall and Mrs. R. R. Miller.

Grand Jury Given Additional Cases

LISBON, Sept. 25.—Cases pending before the September grand jury were boosted to 45 following the filing of two additional transcripts Friday afternoon.

The first case involves Willard Zellers of Fairfield township who was remanded from Justice of the Peace S. S. Weaver's court at Columbiana on a charge of violating public utilities commission regulations. Zellers is accused of operating a truck without a motor permit.

Home Crawford of Wellsville is the second defendant. Crawford is accused of assault and battery on the person of Wayne McConnell, Wellsville. He is at liberty under $500 bond.

DRIVERS LICENSE MAY BE OBTAINED UNTIL 8 O'CLOCK P. M. SATURDAY EVENING AT THE CITIZENS BANK BLDG.

Errant Truck Is "Breakfast Guest" In Rogers Home; Upsets In Parlor

William Folger, Cleveland truck driver, had plenty to think about when his truck got out of control on the steep hill of Route 7 leading into the village of Rogers at 8 a. m. today.

Furthermore, Folger was lucky to escape with minor cuts and bruises when his vehicle crashed "ker-plunk" in the middle of Mrs. Ella Heckathorne's living room.

But that was only the end of the trip. When the Clevelander felt his air brakes give way as he started down the hill, he saw the coast was clear. Nothing was on the highway ahead of him.

The truck gathered momentum and Folger took a firmer grip on the steering wheel.

But his heart jumped into his throat when a freight train lumbered across the Pittsburgh, Lisbon and Western railroad crossing—blocking the highway.

Personal Tax To Be Payable October 1

Mr. Dawson's office force is busy compiling totals on the general tax collections which will be announced soon. The books in this department were closed Sept. 11.

"Hollywood's A Racket--Stay Away!" Warns Mary

Miss Pickford, Or, Rather, Mrs. Buddy Rogers, Encourages Little Theater Movement

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 25.—Mary Pickford, trim in modish black, stood on a table here yesterday and warned people who like to act to stay away from Hollywood.

"Hollywood," the screen actress told amateurs of the Indianapolis Civic theater, "is a racket. Stay at home if you are interested in acting."

Then she stepped down to sign the season's first membership card and to begin a campaign. She put in a good word for the Little Theater movement as a means of expression and leisure-time activity.

Looking backward, America's sweetheart called a movie career a "very rough road" and told her audience she sometimes was sorry she had not stayed on the stage like Helen Hayes.

But she said she might go back to pictures again if she could find the "right story."

Miss Pickford flew here with her husband, Buddy Rogers, from Kansas City, where Actor Rogers had led his orchestra the night before.

Civic theater members, boy scouts, sea scouts and fans with autograph books and cameras met them at the airport. Miss Pickford smiled as she took a bouquet of chrysanthemums from a child.

Her black dress and hat were set off by orchids, diamond clips and a plain gold band ring.

Mary and Buddy were guests of his friend, Wallace O. Lee, Civic theater president, at a housewarming. They strolled the grounds and she took a nap.

After five hours here they boarded a train for a trip to New York on "business and pleasure."

TRUCK DRIVER DIES BENEATH MOVING WHEELS

Kenneth Smith, 24, of Salamanca, N. Y., Victim Of Tragedy

MISHAP OCCURS NEAR ELLSWORTH

Improvement Reported In Condition of Seattle Executive

Kenneth Smith, 24, of Salamanca, N. Y., was instantly killed at 11:15 p. m. Friday when he tripped as he attempted to step from the cab of a truck-trailer as it rolled along the highway, and fell underneath the wheels of the trailer.

The accident, which occurred on Route 224, one mile east of Ellsworth, was investigated by State Patrolman W. E. Arey of Salem.

Smith's head was crushed by the big wheels. He was a helper on the truck, being driven by Harold Allison, 19, also of Salamanca. His body was removed to the Williams funeral home at Canfield.

Falls From Door-way

Allison, part owner of the Associated Shippers truck line, said Smith opened the door of the cab and attempted to stand on the running board. He fell, however, when his left foot caught between the door frame and a suitcase on the floor of the cab.

The truck was loaded with 12 tons of glass, consigned to a Cleveland dealer. The victim was unmarried, Patrolman Arey learned.

Slight improvement was noted at Salem City hospital today in the condition of Samuel Henderson, 63, of Seattle, Wash., who was critically hurt in a two-car crash at the intersection of S. Lincoln ave. and E. Pershing st., shortly before 6 p. m. Thursday.

Adolph Aaronson, 50, of Patton, Pa., injured in the same accident, was removed from the hospital yesterday afternoon.

PENNSYLVANIA G. O. P. RALLIES

Start Campaign to Recover Power; Chairman To Be Named

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 25.—Republican party chieftains in Pennsylvania rallied today to launch a drive back to power in this once traditionally Republican state.

It was the first meeting of the state committee since the campaign last year when Pennsylvania swung to President Roosevelt and the party lost its last two major offices, state treasurer and auditor general, to the Democrats.

Biggest task of the conference was the election of a state chairman to succeed M. Harvey Taylor of Harrisburg, who resigned a few months after last November's election.

Friends of C. Edward Green, acting state chairman, insisted the Pittsburgher had marshalled sufficient strength to win. David

TRIBESMEN HIT ITALIAN TOWN

Massacre Is Reported At Makale, Italians Wiped Out

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The Herald Tribune, in a copyright dispatch from London, said today it was learned from an unimpeachable source that the entire Italian garrison and Italian civil population of the northern Ethiopian town of Makale has been massacred by tribesmen.

Makale was the scene of heavy fighting in the Ethiopian campaign and was captured by Italians on Nov. 8, 1935.

"The Makale slaughter," the Herald Tribune dispatch said, "may partly explain the strange step of Italy in offering the democratic powers something for nothing; that is to say, the stoppage of Italian reinforcements to Spain."

The conciliatory tone of Rome at present suggests that, above all the government wishes to gain recognition of its Ethiopian conquest, and that very soon, before things get any worse in Africa.

"No details of the Makale massacre are known. It is so recent that even the Ethiopian legation in London had not heard of it. The only advice is that the Italian garrison there has been annihilated, along with all Italian civilians."

"Recent reports from Ethiopia have indicated that the tribesmen, deeply resentful at the invasion of their country by Italy and its annexation last year, have been increasing their resistance to the Italian military occupation."

CLOSED INCIDENT

There was a time when an assault on a British ambassador would have brought serious consequences—a time when international affairs were less intricate, perhaps, than they are now.

Late in August, the British ambassador to China, Sir Hugh Montgomery Knatchbull-Hugessen, was riding in an automobile from Nanking to Shanghai. The automobile was bombed and machine-gunned by aviators. Sir Hugh was wounded seriously.

Great Britain protested in the good old fashioned way—vehemently. It demanded all the kinds of satisfaction there are. Thereupon, it began to await Japan's reply, for the British did not question that the aviators were Japanese.

Great Britain finally got its reply this week—a tardy note which said Japan may have been at fault, that it was trying to be careful not to harm nationals of a third country and that, on the date mentioned, Japanese planes did bomb an automobile on the assumption that it contained Chinese officials.

Whereupon Great Britain replied that the incident was closed. Maybe the next time it won't even mention the fact it has been insulted.

SNUBS

There are snubs and snubs. It's one thing for a third grade kid not to offer any jelly beans to the boy who wouldn't let him ride his bicycle and another thing for Someone Who Matters to convey clearly to someone who doesn't matter the exact extent of his unimportance.

The way to make a snub register hard is to put spin on it—to handle it with finesse. There may be times when it would be more satisfying to walk up to an enemy and kick his shins, but that isn't the way to do the most damage. No, it's better to invite him to a party and then show him how much he doesn't mean in the lives of the other guests.

Yes, there are snubs and snubs, some better than others. It's hard to decide exactly how well the American Federation of Labor has snubbed Secretary of Labor Perkins by failing to continue its tradition of inviting the secretary of labor to address its convention, but beyond any shadow of doubt this will rank with the failure of the Duke of Kent to stop off to visit the Duke of Windsor while in the neighborhood a few days back.

ON AND ON AND ON

Thousands die in China and thousands more will die because Japan is determined to make the Chinese respect authority.

Whole towns have been wiped out in Spain to teach Spaniards to respect the blessings of German and Italian fascism.

A few dozen more unlucky devils were dispatched to the happy hunting ground in Russia on Monday for straying from the line which Dictator Stalin determines for them.

The whole world prepares for what it believes will be the ghastliest of all wars because a handful of dictatorial governments boldly threaten to seize things that do not belong to them.

Perhaps the end of civilization which pessimists foresee will come about with two solitary dictators, only survivors of the last great war, fighting each other. It will be a fight to the death, but the survivor, too, will die. With no one to boss but himself, he will find that he can't bear to take orders either.

To assure the success of his plan to reduce the planted acreage of the country from 305,000,000 acres to 490,000,000 acres or less, Secretary Wallace will, of course, make arrangements with the weather and the pests to afford suitable growing conditions.—Indianapolis News.

THE STARS SAY :

For Sunday, September 26

Sunday's horoscope is a rather difficult one, with omens of antipathies or hostilities both open and under cover. It may be necessary to drag these subtle enemies into the open by ruthless or drastic measures. Jealousy seems at the root of this discordant circumstance, with some sordid, mysterious or intriguing state of affairs.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which both open and subtle conspiracies, jealousies, rivalries and antipathies seem to menace progress and peace of mind. It may be necessary to cope with such mysterious under-currents or intrigues by drastic measures, although it might be wise to attempt measures of conciliation before directness of a ruthless sort.

A child born on this day may be of a very positive and aggressive character, determined to get its ends by fair means or foul. It may be emotionally tense, high strung and prone to incite all manner of reprisals. It requires very early training and discipline.

For Monday, September 27

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of conflicting and contradictory conditions, in which there may be much effort required to combat difficult and inharmonious situations menacing all the affairs. It seems as though open hostilities or bitterness of speech might precede more amiable and notable methods of confronting these ominous situations, which involve employment and probably elders.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a series of difficult or disordant situations which involve employment or an elderly person. Much preliminary caustic speech and rancor seem likely, followed by softer and kinder measures, when friendship and happy understandings lead to advantageous denouements, although calling for change.

A child born on this day may be kindly, likeable and friendly, but at the same time deep, studious, melancholy and aloof. Once this difficult nature is understood, it will be found very attractive and companionable.

O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—This is the first time I've tried to step out in evening clothes since I don't know when. In the interim, the full dress suit is now called "white tie and tails." If I had class I'd have a guy named Hunter or something with a dead pan to lay out my things.

But no. I have to do everything myself—that high derisive shriek was from a certain lady peeking over my shoulder. During this lay off, too, the one-stud evening shirt has become as out-moded as one of those steel spring do-hickeys to hike up the coat lapels.

This outfit has been in the moth balls so long it smells a bit gamey. I'll probably find a hornet's nest in an off sleeve and a rat's nest in the coat just about where the suspenders cross. In fact it wouldn't surprise me to find a two-toed sloth hanging to a seam.

But the way I feel just so a bat doesn't fly out and scare me into one of my spells. I'm allergic to bats. Oh, definitely. The last time I was vis-a-vis with a bat I talked in flutey uptakes like Ed Wynn and twitched for a week.

And, of course, my collar. I like the gates ajar effect of a wing collar. It gives the Adam's apple pleasant pasturage. But my supply of collars for evening seems to have taken on an autumnal tint—a bit of the sere and yellow. About three shades lighter than Aunt Agatha's jaundice. But I can't send laundry out to the Chinaman this time of day and get it back on time.

Lucius Beebe, than whom there is none more whomer in white tie-ing it all over the lot, declares the peak in full dress finesse is in having the bow ends stand out just so. One may have all the je ne sais quoi of a Jack Buchanan for the meticulous niceties of after dark habiliments, but just let one tie end appear droopy and you are back there in Ascot tie days with the Bloomer Girls. Just thinking about it, makes me edgy. Imagine appearing at wherever I'm going with one tie end off balance. I couldn't bear it. Think what the boys would say at The Raquet and at the Hamptons. I'd never live it down. I can hear them now in after years as I totter by, with all the dogs barking and the children jeering: "There goes Old Wilty Tie, yanh, yanh, yanh."

It has always seemed a pity—indeed two pities and a sigh—that some Brummel-minded genius has not perfected a hook-on tie that will be all the go for evening. At heart I'm a hook tie boy. In my adolescent years with bear grease on my hair and a squirt of vanilla on my handkerchief, I'd often feature one of those grass green or fiery red bows one bought off a card.

The vest—or weskit as we say on the Piping Rock verandah—is another chameleon-like feature of evening dress. Just when you think a vest saved off to the arm pits is hunky dory, zing, they come out with points reaching down to there. Wonder what became of the vest I picked up in the Burlington Arcade? The one speckled with embroidered fleur de lis. That was a one. I wore it once and somehow it all of a sudden vanished. I've searched high and low. But I have suspicions.

I suppose I'll be about six pleats in arrears with pantaloons, too. This pair has three on each side. What with one thing and another, lumbago and taxes, I have not done any pants pleat pecking for months. There may be more pleats than ever or none at all. If worst comes to worst I'll take along a sharp knife and if pleats are out I can run up some alley and unpleat myself.

The fanciest thing about my full dress regalia is the white silk suspenders with gold monogram clasps. Paul Whiteman gave me one Christmas. Too pretty to wear. If suspender snapping was a vogue again, I'd be a sensation. All our folk, clear back to the end of the holler, were suspender snappers. Listen how I snap. That's not so good. Something happened. The Paul Whiteman suspenders couldn't take it. Too elegant. All silk and gold but no stamina. Just a lot of show. And now I'll have to go to the party reaching high in the air with one hand for shakes and reaching low with the other for my britches.

IRRIGATIONS

FOR SOME time the use of colonic irrigations have been more a fad. But there is no denying that in indicated cases this form of treatment has great value.

On the other hand, it is equally true that in many instances the unwise use of colonic irrigations may produce discomfort and distress. Undoubtedly many persons have resorted to this medication when in reality they required some other form of treatment. Too many persons resort to this form of treatment without first taking medical advice.

Mere irritation of the intestines, spasms, constipation, colitis and other similar disorders are not conditions that necessarily require daily colonic irrigation. Let your doctor advise you as to whether they are needed. If he thinks so he will prescribe the necessary procedure and instruct you in exactly what to do.

Harmful Solutions
Too often those who resort to the use of colonic irrigation are unaware that many of the solutions used may prove to be irritating and even harmful. As a matter of fact, a recent writer points out that ordinary tap water, or a weak solution of table salt at body temperature, is perhaps the most satisfactory and less irritating of such medications.

Another misconception concerning colonic irrigations is the belief that this procedure requires an elaborate device and special supervision of its use. When a simple colonic irrigation is thought to be needed, an ordinary enema bag and rubber tube will be pretty satisfactory.

Of course, the neatness and care of the treatment as given by an expert is most agreeable. It saves a lot of trouble.

Infant Treatment

An infant or young child who requires an irrigation or enema should never be subjected to the amount of fluid commonly used for an adult. In fact, in infants it's best to avoid over-pressure by using a small hand syringe made for this purpose. Under no circumstances should a child be given such treatment unless it is advised by the doctor.

Do not be misled with the belief that colonic irrigations will serve as a sure cure for all ailments. If you have any symptoms which you think may indicate trouble in the intestinal tract, it is wiser to talk with your doctor. Avoid self-medication or remedies advised by well-meaning friends.

CHAPTER I

When I heard Gerard Monteith say to his niece, "It will be to your advantage, in every way, to marry me," I stopped in my tracks on the velvet lawn outside his library porch, wishing that I had come around up the gravel driveway, instead of cutting across the lawn from my father-in-law's summer place, which adjoins the Monteith estate.

I had no desire to be an eaves-dropper, but since the Dave he mentioned was my brother-in-law, and I had taken it for granted for some time that he would marry Mary Monteith, I unblushingly listened.

Mary seemed to wait a moment to frame a careful reply. Finally I heard her say, "After all, Uncle Gerry, in these days the custom of giving a girl whom she must marry is rather gone out."

"Granted," Gerard Monteith did not raise his voice. "Of course I like Dave—" She hesitated. Monteith cleared his throat.

"Yes, the wiser heads of today have abandoned the custom of arranging matches. You have the right to marry as you see fit. At the same time, Mary, I have the right to dispose of my property as I see fit."

I almost whistled at this, a habit I have when surprised. Gerard Monteith's possessions ran into many millions. Mary Monteith's possessions were limited to her wardrobe, and her uncle had been paying for what she wore since she was a child.

"You make it clear enough," Mary said, rather faintly. "That was my intention, my dear. His voice was cheerful again. His imaginary affection for Griswold is merely a passing whim. I'm quite sure you will come to my senses."

I tried to think who the devil Griswold might be. There was Nate Griswold, superintendent of the Monteith estate who lived down in the gate cottage, but he was a man of sixty and married. I did not even think of him, at the moment. Instead of making any comment on this, Mary asked, "Are you coming down for a while?"

"Possibly, if my touch of migraine leaves me."

I darted back into the shrubbery and across to the drive, then approached the great mansion, whistling. Mary came out in rather dainty sport clothes as I was coming by the veranda steps.

"Hello, Mr. Stevenson—" She saw that I had in my hand. "What's that—another mystery novel out?" She extended her hand and I gave it to her. She looked at the title and at the fly-leaf where I had scrawled my name. "That will please Uncle Gerry, he thinks you write the most thrilling crime mysteries."

She handed the book back. "Who is down there?" she asked. "The Townsend twins, the 'Larkins', just the usual crowd." Mary nodded, said, "Uncle Gerry's around on the library porch."

"That will please Uncle Gerry. He thinks you write the most thrilling crime mysteries," said Mary.

and started down across the grounds to the stile, set in the high hedge that separates the extensive estate of Gerard Monteith from the smaller country place of my father-in-law, Major Forrest.

I watched her. As pretty a girl as a man could find in ten blue moons. I wondered how good old Dave would take it if she refused him.

"Well, well, Harley," Monteith greeted me, as I went around to the library porch, "another thriller out, eh?"

"Yes, sir," I handed him the volume. "This makes seven of yours I have. How the devil do you concoct such plots?"

"By the sweat of my brow—hard thinking, hard typewriter pounding. Sounds easy. Thought you were to be a lawyer once. Your grandfather told me he had that ambition for you."

"I took a fling at it and didn't like it." Monteith sighed and shook his head. "This generation—I don't know what to make of it."

He would have been surprised had he known that I knew he was thinking of Mary's evident decision not to marry Dave Forrest.

"I worked a couple of years in a private detective agency, out in Chicago. Guess I never told you, sir. Then I drifted into writing. From the way I struggled with law I am quite sure I am doing much better grinding out these thrillers. Picture people have paid me more for some of them than I'd have earned in the law in a decade."

He thanked me again, had Davidson, his butler, bring out a scotch and said, as I was leaving, "Tell the Major I will be down in a while, if a little nap out here will clear up my touch of migraine."

Gerard Monteith was only fifty, fifty-one or two, and tall, rather young appearing, yet he hadn't been his usual vigorous self for several years.

I cut back down across the grounds. Mary and Dave were playing a set of tennis. The Townsend twins and some of the younger ones were monopolizing the pool. Wallace Foxcroft was just driving in. Wallace was our county prosecutor, the youngest we ever had here. He was a good lawyer, and on his way up to high places, political.

We knew, of course, that Wally was another of the several young men who had fallen in love with Mary Monteith.

My esteemed wife's esteemed parents, Major and Mrs. Forrest, were possessed of the priceless knack of entertaining, making people almost instantly at home and happy. They loved company. Three or four afternoons a week they had a flock of South Cove residents over at their place, Rookwood. Now Rookwood was only one quarter as extensive, and about one eighth as valuable as the grand estate of Gerard Monteith, yet South Cove people found the Monteith place oppressive and much preferred Rookwood and the "Gay Forests" as we were called. Having married Sally Forrest, I ranked myself as one of the "Gay Forests."

Sally wasn't in sight when I returned. I sat on the terrace with my father-in-law and Wally Foxcroft, Mason, the butler Major Forrest had had more than two years, brought out the ingredients for highballs. Mason, the Forrests would tell you, was absolutely priceless as a butler.

The Townsend twins came dashing from the pool to tell me they had read that morning that I had the latest crime mystery yarn from my battered typewriter was off the press, and to ask, with great eagerness, if I had done as they had asked, many times, put them into a story.

Three Killed in Prison Break Foiled by Warden

View of Folsom prison yard

Clyde Stevens

Two convicts and one guard were slain and eight others wounded in an attempted prison break at Folsom, Cal., foiled by the heroism of Warden Clarence Larkin. Overpowered by seven convicts while interviewing them in his office, Warden Larkin was commanded to order prison guards to throw guns to the desperadoes, but refused although he was stabbed and beaten. After 15 minutes of bitter fighting in the prison yard, above, the riot was quelled.

"Perhaps, next time," I half promised. They pouted prettily and disappeared.

Sally came out then and I took her around to a side porch and told her what I had inadvertently overheard.

"But Harley," she cried, "I took it for granted there was already a tacit engagement." "So did I, Old Girl, but Dave is a claim. He never says a word about anything."

"Griswold? Griswold? Do you suppose we know him? How could Mary meet him enough to fall in love with him, if she has, without our meeting him?"

Then it was that I recalled the only Griswold I knew, old Nate, the aged superintendent who had lived all his life in the Monteith gate cottage down at the driveway entrance.

"Don't be silly, they have no children—" Sally stopped and stared at me. "But he has a nephew, a handsome young man. I saw him once."

"Nonsense! Mary wouldn't give two looks at the nephew of one of her uncle's old servants."

"I don't see how you ever sell your stories," Sally declared, "if that is all you know about feminine human nature."

"But who is this nephew of old Nate? How did you chance to see him?" "I stopped at the gate cottage to get some bulbs and this tall, handsome young man came out. Old Nate came out then and introduced me, in his shy way, merely saying that he was his 'nephew' from Kingsbury."

"Kingsbury?" I recalled something. "There you are, Old Girl—that's where the girl's college is, Kingswold, where Mary graduated!"

Sally's pretty eyes popped open wider than ever. "I wonder," she exclaimed, half under her breath. (To Be Continued)

Steamer Bringing Black Home

Now on the high seas en route to Baltimore, the steamer City of Norfolk is carrying Hugo L. Black, newly appointed supreme court justice, and his family back from a sojourn abroad. Dodging reporters who trailed him for a statement regarding Ku Klux Klan charges involving him, the former Alabama senator secretly boarded ship five minutes before it left Southampton, England.

The Silver Rood Mystery

LEWIS ALLEN BROWNE'S story of Strange and Baffling Crime

"How—how sort of awful—a knife out of a crucifix!" Mary gasped.

The slayer of Gerard Monteith shared the secret of the silver rood, for the deadly dagger it encased was the instrument of death . . . restored to its hiding place before the murder was discovered.

How many knew this secret? Who of these had a motive?

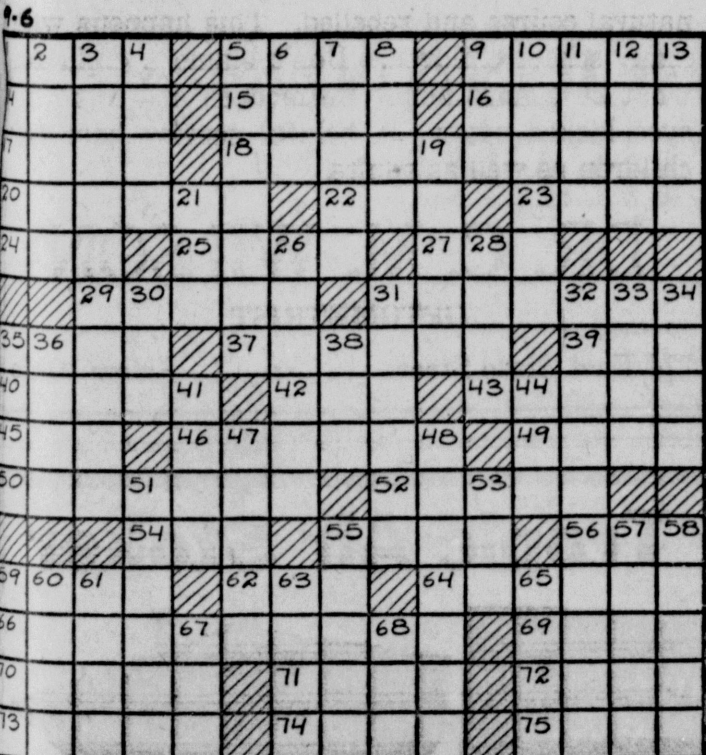

Through a maze of baffling circumstances, this stirring story develops with constantly rising interest.

A Changeless Christ

We are living in a rapidly changing world. In the last generations man's mode of life has been completely revolutionized. There has been stupendous progress in every field of human endeavor. Startling changes have been brought about by great inventions and discoveries. And yet men's inherent spiritual needs have not changed. He is agitated by the same perplexing questions that disturbed his forefathers. He is still a sinner. He still looks for reconciliation with his God. He still must die. He still is confronted by the stern realities of eternity. In brief, he still needs a Savior. He still needs the eternal verities revealed in the Word of God. Everything has changed except his fundamental needs. We preach a changeless Christ in a changing world. You are cordially invited to hear His message of salvation.

Salem High Grid Team Is Unimpressive In Opening Win Over Sebring Eleven

Quakers Record 14 to 0 Victory, But Fail To Show Continuous Display of Power Against Injury-Riddled Sebring Aggregation

By JACK BALLANTINE
News Sports Editor

While this is being written (Friday night), there is horn-blowing, bell-ringing and shouting going on outside.

What it's all about, I don't know. It most certainly can't be for that 14 to 0 victory Salem High school's Quakers gained over an injury-riddled Sebring eleven out at Reilly stadium, even if it was the Quakers' first football win since November, 1935.

Unless all the noise is being made to give Coach James Hostettler's scrappy crew of pint-sized gridgers the send-off they rightfully deserve, there's apparently a lot of good racket going to waste.

There was nothing impressive about that unearned victory. Weight, and weight alone, enabled the Quakers to chalk up the win. Weakened by the task of shoving hefty gridgers around for more than two quarters, Sebring let them late in the third period to permit the Quakers to make their first score.

Ole Olexa, veteran left half-back, made the touchdown after he had alternated with big Max Lutsch, 182-pound full-back, in bringing the ball into scoring position on the one-foot line.

The drive which resulted in the Quakers' first score started on Sebring's 42-yard line and produced the first show of power made by the Salem eleven.

A blocked punt mid-way in the fourth quarter set the stage for the second touchdown. Three Salem linemen broke through to smash Sonny Campbell's kick to the ground giving the Quakers the ball on the Sebring 43.

Olexa and Lutsch again shared ball-carrying duties in moving the ball to the six-yard stripe from where Olexa slashed off right guard to the goal line, dragging one Sebring player with him.

Lutsch accounted for both of Salem's extra points on place kicks. Outside of the two touchdowns drives, which were the Quakers' only displays of power, Salem did most of its ball playing in its own territory.

Playing without the services of four regulars, Sebring had the Quakers fighting with their backs to the wall throughout the first half and much of the second.

Sebring made one serious scoring threat, this at the start of the second quarter when diminutive Steve Christ, 121-pound quarterback pulled the old "lay-out" play along the sidelines and took a perfect pass from Emil Schneider to advance the ball from Sebring's 48 yard line to its 14.

The threat ended on the six-yard stripe when Salem intercepted a Sebring pass on fourth down.

Sebring's main claim to glory in the contest was the manner in which it patched-up team, which at one time had a fourth string center in the lineup, set the apparently overconfident Quakers back on their heels.

Obviously, Salem has nothing to shout about. If the Quakers had shown one-quarter's worth of continuous power and drive in the contest or if they had run up five or six touchdowns on their supple Sebring weak opposition, then there would be something to get "hot and bothered" over.

But as it was, there was nothing to celebrate. Sebring was definitely the better ball club, despite the fact it came out on the losing end.

The Quakers' exhibition was as miserable as it ever was in the midst of that long losing streak which came to an end last night. Big, husky Quaker linemen, outweighting their opponents 20 pounds to the man, were pushed all over the field by lighter and scrapper Sebring players.

There wasn't a good block executed by a Salem player in the entire game. Time after time Sebring wingmen and backs were left standing wide open as the Quakers tried end runs and off-tackle plays. At one time after time Red and Black linemen put an affectionate shoulder block on opponents then slipped to the ground to let members of Sebring's forward wall crash through and break up a play before it got under way.

Except on five or six occasions, tackling by Red and Black gridgers, mainly linemen, was sloppy. Sticking out one hand and hoping Sebring back would fall over it constituted most of the tackling.

Lack of clever backfield maneuvering was plainly evident. Practically all of the ball-carrying was done by two players, Olexa and Lutsch. Sebring players merely had to keep their eyes on these two backs and wait until Salem blockers brushed by them to halt the Quakers' ball-toters in their tracks. Where the Quakers' defense was classed as their strongest point in pre-season practice, it developed as one of their weakest points under game conditions. Gaping holes were opened in the line as tackle and guards were blocked in consistently. Sebring gained 82 yards from rushing and most of this yardage was made through the tackles.

The play of two, and only two, Salem gridgers stood out in the contest. One was Olexa, who did most of the ball-carrying, smashing and driving his way for gains despite the fact that interference clogged his path numerous times. The other was Nestor, who played aggressive and heady football, never letting a play get around his end and blocking hard to pave the

Both Nestor and Olexa were taken out of the game because of injuries. Olexa's ankle went bad on him in the fourth period. Shortly after Nestor's was brought to the sidelines, suffering from an injured arm, which examination in the dressing room showed was broken.

Nestor will be lost to the team for the remainder of the season because of his injury.

Penalties, brought on by linemen who repeatedly jumped the ball to go off-side, cost the Quakers several nice gains. Salem linemen were offside eleven times during the contest. Sebring accepted the penalty on seven occasions.

The Quakers attempted only one pass in the contest, this going incomplete when it was knocked down by Sonny Campbell of Sebring. Sebring attempted six passes, completing one.

TEXAS OUT TO UPHOLD FIRST GAME RECORD

T. C. U. Has Never Been Defeated In Opening Game of Season

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Sept. 25.—Texas Christian's Horned Frogs, from a student body of about 900 and boasting a record of never having dropped an intercollegiate or opening grid game, hoped to play the David to Goliath today as they tackled at the Buckeye stadium in the country's stand-out football scrap.

The Bucks, representing a student body of about 12,000, also had a bit of first-game tradition to maintain, for not since 1894 had the Ohiols finished second in an opener.

The largest inaugural crowd in Ohio's history, about 75,000, was on hand for the struggle. The throng out-distanced by 30,000 any before which the Horned Frogs ever had appeared.

An aerial battle was on the books, both teams being exponents of the wide open "razzle-dazzle" type of offense. Coach Francis A. Schmidt brought the "sleight-of-hand" assault along with him three years ago when he left Texas Christian to tutor the Bucks, and the method has won 19 of 24 contests for him in the tough Big Ten circles.

Each team was without a known star as they moved into the fray, the starting elevens in both cases being made up of a few scattered starters from last year and a flock of 1936 reserves. The Frogs were without the services of "Slingin' Sam" Baugh, rated the best passer the southwest ever turned out, while the Bucks had no ball-carrier standing out over his mates.

Practically even in weight, height and experience, and playing the same style of game, the teams were destined to win or lose according to the way the "breakers" swung the tide of battle. Should a promised rain materialize, the kicking of big Howard Wedebrook, Ohio right halfback, was expected to give the Bucks an edge, as Wedebrook is known for his ability to boot his pigskin a "country mile."

MORRIS HARVEY STAGES UPSET

Edges Marietta College As Intercollegiate Grid Games Start

(By Associated Press)

They went from set-up to upset. The team: Little Morris Harvey. The victim: Marietta college. The score: 7 to 6.

The lightly-regarded West Virginia eleven, in one of five Friday games involving Ohio college elevens, spanked a team which won five of its seven tilts last year.

Dell Pauley's interception of a Marietta pass and his 45-yard dash for a last period touchdown allowed Fullback Mae to placekick the extra point which proved the game winner at Charleston.

The Ohiols executed a complicated play in the few minutes later which put Morin across from the 45-yard line but Ogden's try for the tying point failed.

In other Friday games, the University of Dayton's hard-driving outfit thumped Wittenberg at Springfield, 28-7. Denison showed power in crushing Defiance at Granville, 45-7. Muskingum easily downed Otterbein at New Concord, 19-6. and Heidelberg's Student Princes shut out Ashland at Tiffin, 14 to 0.

Wittenberg started with a seven-point first period lead over the Flyers, composed of a number of last year's untied sophomores who now are seeking the benefit of their experience.

Abrams went 56 yards for the Lutherans' touchdown, then Marrie retaliated with a 70-yard run for Dayton in the second period and the flyers added another tally before the half was over. They piled up two more in the third period.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Close to a half million football fans—a big crowd in any man's language—were expected to turn out for a score of the big games today as the curtain rolled up for the grand opening of the 1937 season.

This gathering, unusual for this time of the year to say the least, was attracted by a schedule that would do credit to mid-October, when the "major" attractions usually are just starting. In every section, from the conservative east, native habitat of the gridiron "pushovers," to the Pacific coast, there were meetings between outstanding teams and the crowds that turn out annually for such games.

Starting the first western season off with a bang, California and St. Mary's expected to lure 60,000 customers through the gates; Stanford and Santa Clara looked for 40,000, while the intersection clash which found Washington favored over Iowa's Hawkeyes was expected to draw 35,000.

The four-star attraction of them all, however, was the meeting in that notoriously football-mad town of Columbus of Ohio State and Texas Christian. The Buckeyes anticipated a gathering of 75,000. Co-

PACIFIC CROWN SEEMS TO FIT GOLDEN BEARS

Football Veterans Abound In Addition to Stars Among '36 Frosh

LOS ANGELES — California's Bears, long overdue for the Coast crown, sounded their first warning last year when they romped over Southern California, trampled Stanford and lost by just a point to a Washington State team that at the time was still tied for the title.

This year Coach Stubb Allison's roster is overstocked with veterans. Eleven of 27 returning lettermen have won their "C" twice, and the squad is considerably bolstered by 25 youngsters who performed on the unbeaten 1936 frosh team.

A really fine line should be built around Bob Herwig, the husky center who does virtually everything but run with the ball. A strong candidate for all-American recognition unless he is injured, Herwig is a rough, tough player who is at his best when the going is hard. He will have veterans on his right and left. Six letterman ends, headed by Perry Schwartz and Henry Sparks; five guards topped by Ward Stockton, and a half dozen tackles who saw equal action last year will provide a forward wall that is three-deep at every position.

John Meeks, sparkling signal-caller, and Ken Cotton will lead the backfield. Morris Pollock, a diminutive dash man, will come into special prominence in view of Allison's avowed intention of breaking out an open offense, replete with laterals that the Bears used with telling effect on Southern California last year.

Sam Chapman, considered one of the greatest all-around backs in Bear history, and Perry Thomas will round out the backfield in the half posts.

The California record of last year was four victories and three defeats in conference play.

As the season opens, Washington stacks up as only a shade less powerful than the team which galloped to the title without a conference defeat a year ago. Jimmy Phelan can open with a full team of men who played against Pittsburgh in the Rose Bowl game, but his freshman material is considered so promising that several veterans may watch the first game from the sidelines.

The Haines-Cain-Logg-Nowogroski backfield is gone, but the combination of Newton-Johnston-Craver-Miller is expected to replace it without too severe a loss of smoothness.

Phelan's greatest losses are John Wiatrak, all-Coast center, and Max Starcevic, all-American guard. Center will be hardest to replace, and it is whispered two rugged tackles would greatly help.

Seventeen lettermen are available in all, including Fritz Wassco-witz, a two-year veteran at half-back, who apparently has been overlooked to date. Steve Silvinsky, guard, Vic Mowbray, tackle, and Dick Johnson and Frankie Peters are the standout linemen.

Washington won the title last year without a conference defeat. The only blotch was a 14-1 tie with Stanford. Defeats were sustained from Minnesota and Pittsburgh, rated the nation's No. 1 and 2 teams.

Althouse Motors To Close Season

The Salem Althouse Motors of the Columbiana County Baseball league will meet the Paris Cleaners at the Lake Park diamond, near Alliance, in their final game of the season tomorrow.

The game will start at 2:30. The Cleaners are city league champions of Alliance.

WESTFIELD, Mass.—Roger Butler was surprised when he found a single yellow blossom on his elm tree. A sunflower with a three-foot stem was growing in a crotch of the tree 25 feet above the ground.

Sets New Mark

Here is Jacqueline Cochran with the trophy she was awarded at the national air show at Detroit for setting a new world speed record for women flyers of 290 miles per hour, breaking the former mark of 276 miles per hour established by Helen Boucher of France.

BOWLING NEWS

The newly organized Federal Bowling league lifted the lid on its 1937-38 season at the Masonic temple alleys last night with close action in four matches.

The Electric Furnace was the lone team to win three games during first night activity, defeating Brownie's Amoco Gas quintet. The Sanitary Office, Demings and Gas Co. each won two out of three games.

Closest of the four matches was the one between the Sanitary Office and Salem News. The Office team won the first game by eight pins, lost the second by a big margin, but came back to take the third by two pins.

J. Meier of Demings turned in high scores for the night with a 197 single game and a 509 series.

PRISON WARDEN IS STRUCK DOWN

Attacked by Convict In "One-Man Riot" At Alcatraz

(By Associated Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Burton E. Phillips, life term at Alcatraz federal prison, was in solitary confinement today while Warden James A. Johnston was recovering from injuries suffered when Phillips struck him down in a "one-man riot" in the prison's dining hall.
Prison officials did not reveal what further disciplinary measures would be taken against Phillips, sentenced to the San Francisco bay island penitentiary for kidnapping and bank robbery. The attack took place during Johnston's customary noon-day inspection of prisoners yesterday.

100 On Strike
Only shortly before, the warden had prepared a statement disclosing a hundred convicts had been on "strike" and had been confined to their cells since Monday.
Bleeding from head and face injuries, the warden was taken to the prison hospital but later was removed to his home adjoining the prison. Dr. George Ness said his injuries apparently were not serious.

Johnston himself telephoned a report of the assault to the department of justice in Washington and then resumed charge through Deputy Warden Edward A. Miller.
The 100 strikers, Johnston said, apparently are making "an effort to draw attention to themselves and stamper the department of justice into giving them more privileges and paroles."

The warden was attacked as he walked down a line of prisoners. Phillips suddenly stepped out of line behind him and felled him with a blow of his fist.
Reports Phillips kicked the Warden after he was down could not be confirmed.

Guards Go Into Action
Guards rushed to Johnston's assistance while other guards at elevated posts about the hall trained rifles upon the 200 prisoners in the room. Other guards stood ready to release overhead tear gas bombs. The prisoners, however, stood still, watching the affray in apparent amazement.

Alcatraz has been a prison for incorrigible convicts since August, 1934.

JAPAN ADDS TO BOMB TERROR

Planes Scatter New Devastation In Central, South China

(By Associated Press)
SHANGHAI, Sept. 25.—Fleets of Japanese warplanes scattered new devastation and terror today in the most densely populated areas of central and south China.
Shanghai, Nanking, Canton and Wuhan cities—Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang—the great centers that Japan's air raiders have punished most severely, all were revisited. Hundreds of non-combatant Chinese died. The bombers left widespread devastation.

A fleet of 36 Japanese bombers, rising from military airdromes here in a bright dawn, realized the fears of Nanking's agonized populace after a rainy day's absence from China's capital.

Roar Over Defense
In flying wedges of three, Japanese bombers roared over Shanghai's defense lines, blasting concrete pillboxes and driving Chinese troops below, but without telling effect.

Air raiders returned to the Wuhan cities, central China's commercial and industrial "Chicago" 450 air-miles up the Yangtze from Shanghai, before daybreak. Chinese officials raised yesterday's estimate of non-combatant deaths, between 200 and 500, to almost 1,000.

Canton suffered several small air raids during the night and again in daylight today. Most of the bombs fell near the Hankow railroad station, terminus of a line used by many foreign refugees from the Wuhan cities.

The night raid on the Wuhan cities, centered mostly in Hankow, compressed appalling devastation within a 10-minute hail of explosives.

Bombs wrecked the city's power supply, compelling over-worked doctors to operate in candlelight on unending streams of wounded.

Three bombs, falling close together, devastated a teeming Nivillian area of 200 by 150 feet where streets are only six feet wide. At least 80 flimsy dwellings crumpled like paper under the bombardment and were consumed by flames.

Slum Area Hard Hit
The heaviest casualties were in the Wuchingmiao slum district, where stretcher-bearers seemed to bring out more dead and wounded children than adults. One bomb narrowly missed the Wesleyan mission hospital.

In one corner of the Wuchingmiao district, 120 mangled Chinese corpses were carried past the Associated Press correspondent within a period of 10 minutes.

Anguished men, women and children ran through the streets screaming in terror, their cries mingling with the groans of the wounded.

Bodies lay in the alley-like streets, the dead and wounded inextricably mixed, until rescue corps were organized.

In one district of Hanyang a single Japanese bomb killed 60 Chinese outright.

With unusual accuracy, Chinese anti-aircraft batteries at Nanking quickly struck one Japanese bomber amidst flames, plunging it to earth in flames. The Chinese, flying ten swift American-made pursuit planes, were said to have shot down three other Japanese bombers, one on the southern edge of the capital and two in the north.
